

WORKSHOP

TAME YOUR IMPOSTER

(You might have more than one!)

Imposter syndrome getting in your way?
Preventing you from taking the opportunities you know you've earned and deserve?

Your imposter can be annoying, for sure. At her worst, she can cause you stress, misery and crippling self-doubt.

But when you understand your imposter (and you might have more than one type keeping you small), you can tame her and turn her into one of your most powerful leadership tools.

Join internationally accredited executive coach Karyn Brinkley for this two-hour workshop, as she explains what's really going on when your imposter is causing you grief, the different types of imposters that might be in your life, and the 10-step strategic process you can learn in this one session to make your imposter/s a terrific asset.

Feel free to encourage your executive women colleagues and team members to register with you.

2 HOURS, REAL CHANGE

- Resetting your brain so you learn and retain what you've learned today
- Why imposter syndrome is real, and why it affects women like you so seriously
- How your imposter syndrome developed, and how it's operating right now in your life
- The five types of imposter you might encounter — and the one you most want to tame
- The 10-step strategic process for harnessing your imposter's power and using it for good in your career and your life.
